Historic Name N/A

Year Built c. 1908

Architectural Style Colonial Revival

The gambrel front two-story cottage has an unusual feature in that the cross-massing ends in multi-sided towers on the north and south sides. The narrow clapboard cladding at the first floor and shingle siding at the second floor and on the full width front porch is usually found on examples of the Prairie style, as is the shingle clad pillars in the center of the porch. There are Doric columns at the corners of the porch. The four over two window configuration appears to be original.

Significant Features

- Gambrel roof facing front with shed roof dormers and cross wings ending in multi-sided two-story tall bays.
- Deep full width front porch with shingle sided knee wall and central pillars, Doric columns at corners.
- Narrow clapboard at first floor, shingle siding at second floor.
- Four over two window configuration.
- Rear sleeping porch with shallow roof and carved brackets.

Condition

The cottage appears to be in good repair with no apparent issues.
